PROPOSALS
BY BENJAMIN EDES & CO.
OF BALTIMORE,

For Publishing a New and Valuable Work, by Subscription, entitled,

An Universal Dictionary
OF
Commercial Geography:

CONTAINING all that relates to the situation and extent of every Commercial state in the world, and a comprehensive and correct account of their agriculture and products, their manufactures, fisheries and mines, and the commerce resulting therefrom—their laws, customs, tribunals and administrations of commerce—their land carriage and navigation; their banks and commercial companies; their monies weights and measures; their exports and imports; their exchange and the balance of trade; their colonies &c. &c. arranged in alphabetical order.—From the French of J. Peuchet, author of the Dictionary of Police, of the Methodical Encyclopaedia, &c.

☞ The publishers have been at great expense in obtaining the only translation, revised and corrected by gentlemen of well known talents, which will make about 15 vols. 8 vo. containing 600 pages each, dedicated to the Merchants of the U. S. Copy right secured according to law.

The work now proposed to the public may be said to be a miniature view of the commercial world, unfolding the commerce of every clime. It combines the experience of past ages with the trade of the present day. In the author's preliminary discourse and introduction, will be found a most interesting history of commerce from remote ages progressively until the publication of the work, together with the tables of the money of the different nations of the world; tables of the old and present weights & measures of distance, surface, solids and capacity in France, adopted since the revolution, &c. &c. Therein all the intricacies and labyrinths of trade are brought into one view.

The high estimation in which the Commercial Geographical Dictionary is held in Europe, induces the publishers to cherish a hope that in their expectations of remuneration they will not be disappointed. They know not of any work in the English language on the subject of which it treats, of so general importance.

Gentlemen acquainted with the real merits of the work will be highly gratified in seeing it in English dress, to effect which the publishers have not hesitated to encounter every obstacle, and brave every expense. They are determined that the work shall be executed in a style which shall not deteriorate the character of the American press.

CONDITIONS.

The work will make at least 15 large octavo volumes, containing 600 pages each, and printed on a new type and paper of a good quality.

It will be delivered to subscribers bound in boards, at $3 for each volume, payable on delivery. To non subscribers the price will be enhanced.

It is expected one volume will be delivered each month from the commencement. A list of the patrons of the work will be added to the last volume.

☞ Subscriptions received at this office.

TUESDAY, JUNE 5.

☞ The following, with its continuations, will be read with more than common attention. It is from the pen of a gentleman whose exalted talents and profound conceptions, cannot fail to bring conviction of the truth of what he asserts, home to the mind of every one.

Amid the desolation of property and the ruin of innocent individuals, which must unavoidably be effected by the late destructive confiscations of France, is a patriot to look forward to no public benefit, no cheering hope? May he not expect that there cannot from this time exist an honest and reflecting man in the United States who does not see and feel in its proper force the full front and bearing of her enormous aggressions? The editor of the National Intelligencer, in one of his latest numbers, has with a laudable impartiality admitted "that the principles contained in these state papers, in which the conduct of the French emperor is avowed, are such as America never can adopt WITHOUT DISGRACE; the terms, in which they are expressed, an outrage on dignity and decorum; and the language used only fitted to EXITE INDIGNATION." He declares too an opinion that France seems determined to maintain these unwarrantable principles, and there is BUT LITTLE CHANCE of an early accommodation of our differences with her.

Much as every friend to his country must lament the wide spreading ruin that must be inflicted on a vast number of comfortable and happy families, by these extensive confiscations, it must be some consolation to him to perceive that there are still honest and uncontaminated feelings in the mass of the American yeomanry, which will revolt at this crying injustice, and stamp its author with the infamy and execration he deserves.

On the 1st of March, 1809, the Congress of the United States passed the Non-Intercourse act, as it is usually denominated. By the third section of that act, it was declared that from and after the 20th of May then next, no vessel sailing under the flag either of Great Britain or France should enter the ports or harbors of the U. States, and if after that day any such vessel should arrive in any port or harbor of the United States (unless she was employed by her government to carry letters or despatches, or driven in by stress of weather) she, together with her cargo, if she had any on board, should be confiscated.

At this time France permitted American vessels to enter her ports. She had given no notice declaring her intent to prohibit their entry, unless they had been searched or visited by a British ship. From the time of raising the embargo, the 15th of March, 1809, until the 16th of February, 1810, she gave no official notice of any alteration, or intended alteration, of her system. On the 16th of February, 1810, Mr. Armstrong, our minister, received the insolent and indecent note (one of those before referred to) from Champagny, who has now assumed the title of the Duc de Cadore; and on the 19th of March, 1810, the Marquis Gallo, minister of foreign affairs to his majesty the king of the two Sicilies, (as he styles himself) wrote to our consul at Naples the letter published in the Freeman's Journal of May 28.

From an early period in 1809 till the middle of February, 1810, a period of 11 months, the valuable vessels and cargoes of the citizens of the United States are navigated under a confidence of security into the ports of France, and thus subject to her power in Holland, Spain, Italy and Naples, and at last, when those harbors are filled, a sudden and immediate seizure is made of those who were not within the purview of those plundering edicts she had made before, under a new pretext: under the pretext, "that the United States, without making any complaint of France, comprised her in their acts of exclusion," to wit, the non-intercourse act.

What a marked difference between the conduct of France and that of the United States.

The United States pass the act prohibiting the entrance of French vessels into the American ports, on the 1st of March, 1809. The prohibition does not take effect till the 20th of May following, a period of two months and twenty days. A French minister resides at the seat of our government. Immediately after its passing, the law was known to him. Immediately after its passing, he transmitted an account of it to the jealous, watchful, prying administration by which he is appointed. It was known in France long before the 20th of May, and therefore the people of France were forewarned of the danger which would ensue from sending their vessels here. It is not known that any did come, except such as brought despatches or were in real distress, or simulated the appearance of it. It is not known that any were seized and confiscated by the United States for a breach of this law.

On the other hand, the unsuspecting citizens of our oppressed and deluded country, rush with rich cargoes into the harbors of France and those subject to her power, comprising the greatest part of the coast of Europe on the Atlantic and Mediterranean, and are seized without a moment's notice, under an edict that they did not know of until it was enforced.

The pretext is as false in fact, as it is outrageous in the manner of its execution. American vessels, says this duke de Cadore, were seized in the ports of Holland, Italy and Naples, because Americans had seized French vessels. He mentions no French vessels that were seized. It is not believed that any were seized, although it is known that several French privateers entered our harbors during the continuance of the embargo, without any reasonable cause to warrant them in doing so, after they had insulted and plundered our innocent countrymen on the ocean; and were permitted to go away stored with provisions and every comfort that our country could afford.

Again, when the American vessels were shut out of the ports of France and her dependencies, if they had been on an innocent voyage to a British port, or had been searched or visited against their will by a British cruizer, we considered it a municipal regulation. We did not seize French vessels although they seized and confiscated ours under their infamous decrees of Berlin and Milan. But the moment we make a municipal regulation to prevent French vessels from entering our ports, although we gave them fair and regular notice of it, they consider it a breach of their rights, as operating (unjustly) against the commerce of France and the states leagued with her, &c. and seize without a moment's notice, every vessel belonging to us within their grasp.

Unjust as Great Britain may have been to us in some instances, she did not act in this way, although her power to injure us is infinitely greater, and although her flag was equally excluded from our ports by the same law.

It is adding insult to injury to say, as Champagny's letter does say, "that the U. States comprised France in her exclusion, without MAKING ANY COMPLAINT OF FRANCE" Are not the journals of both houses of our legislature, our public laws, and the remonstrances of our minister for years past, full of LOUD COMPLAINTS against the tyranny and atrocity of French edicts?

From the Independent American.

At length we have official acknowledgment from government of the authenticity of Champagny's note: and the administration is, or pretend to be, highly displeased. The secretary of state has expressed himself in language of high resentment, especially at the conduct of the emperor, in publishing the note before giving it to Mr. Armstrong. But why is Mr. Secretary so enraged? Is it because the note is public and cannot be concealed? Had it been sent by Armstrong to the executive we much doubt whether it would have ever seen a newspaper. It called for by congress there would have been some "delicate considerations" to prevent its meeting the eye of the world. The secretary is indeed very angry, but we fear his anger arises more from the publicity than the contents of the note.—The language and the sentiments of the note are no more than what our government ought to have expected. Shall we say they are no more than what the government have encouraged? For, from the 4th of March, 1801, to the present time, what has been the conduct of government, but to suffer and to supplicate; to have our nose wrung by Bonaparte; to pay him for it, and intreat him to keep our infamy a secret? No wonder the secretary now blusters and complains, and in private conversation discover all the spirit and resentment of words. Bonaparte has told the world what our government is and has long been. He has torn the lion's skin from their heads, and they can no longer hide their organs of hearing. No wonder the secretary is angry: the people now awaken and the government must act. Congress must act; and the first expression of their opinions must convey a most damning denunciation of the policy and proceedings of themselves and their cabinet directors. To preserve their moral character they must confess themselves dupes: but they can never persuade the people that the administration was altogether duped by the French. The Jeffersonian system so long and cautiously but ardently pursued by himself, and so faithfully by his successor, stands revealed to the world. Yes, the DETERMINATION to assist France and to injure Great Britain, can no longer be mantled in secrecy, nor the knowledge of it be evaded by sophistry. No wonder the secretary is outrageous;—Bonaparte has shown us a government that dared not show themselves. No wonder the secretary's blood boils with passion; public indignation will be heavier than the nether millstone, and grind the cabinet to powder. The people must not SEE.—What? Not that our government has been for years premising Bonaparte that they would go to war with England as soon as the people should be persuaded to sanction such a war: that the government has been urging them to take up arms against England: that the government has endeavored to assist France by endeavoring to ruin England with non importation, embargo and non-intercourse acts: that they have failed in persuading them to fight G. Britain: that Bonaparte is now enraged at the long delay, and, seeing no prospect of its being accomplished, he has seized millions and millions of our property, which he will keep, unless we immediately perform what he has been encouraged to believe we should have done ere this. No, they will see nothing like this, unless they examine things as they are.

Perilous times are coming for the secretary; from which however he may partially escape by a speedy retreat to the shades of private life.

Amaz'd the man was who did wisdom want,
And he began to waver, weak and frail,
While trembling horrors did his conscience dant,
And mighty anguish did his soul assail,
To drive him to despair, and quite to quail,
He painted saw, upon a table plain,
Gold stole by France, for which the owners wail,
And countrymen imprison'd and in pain,
Or in French ships of war where long they must remain.

The sight whereof so sorely him dismay'd,
That nought but ruin he before him saw,
And all the people's wrath upon him laid,
By righteous sentence of eternal law;
For him they much did scorn and over crawe,
Then 'gan he think of poison, rope and fire,
That from his dreadful misery might him draw.

At last he ween'd 'twas wisdom to retire,
And fly the nation's just and sore impending ire."

FROM THE SAME.

Several cabinet councils have been held of late, but the deliberations and result are a secret. Mr. Gallatin left here for Geneva, on Thursday last; [not the European Geneva, but his seat somewhere near Pittsburg.] Perhaps no government was ever more puzzled than is ours now how to act. That abominable partiality to France, and dread of her power, which has so long been rendering our government contemptible in the eyes of Europe, odious in the sight of federalists, and at least pitiful in the estimation of even democrats; have reduced them to a situation, in which stand "tremblingly alive all over;" dreading to take a single step lest they should blunder, and conscious of encreasing odium, should they continue motionless. They are fully awake to all the develry, duplicity and cajoling of France; but dare not tell the people of it: full well knowing that the magazines of an insulted, injured, duped nation's resentment, are ready to be poured upon them. They cannot; 'tis absolutely impossible; they cannot make the American people believe, that they have done their duty. By Gallic and Jeffersonian, not by American principles and pursuits, have our government brought this nation to a depth of degradation and far spreading calamities, with the prospect of deeper dishonor and miseries more manifold.

How do they feel when they meet together? They can only stand staring at each other with rueful visages & torpid tongues; or give to recrimination hours that ought to be devoted to consultation. "It is your fault" and "it is your fault," can only be bandied from one to another.

The threshhold of consultation is strewed with the thorns of self accusation. Shall we call congress together? Yes, we will take no responsibility on ourselves; and longer inaction is impossible—But what congress be called? No: we shall not know what to tell them, nor what to advance.—We can only tell them that by our own ill conduct and imbecility we have brought ourselves into an awkward predicament, and the country to disgrace and impending ruin; and now we beg them to help us out of our difficulties. Let us not call congress yet.—Let us know the sentiments of the people; the opinions of public writers. We must seem to lead, after being directed which way to go. One month will give us, the sentiments of the union from Maine to Georgia. Our popularity, our summum bonum is at stake: it may yet be preserved by cautious forbearance to act without popular direction. Yet it were better to call congress. State the necessity in the proclamation; but recommend nothing. When convened let us consult the Gileses and Johnstons; plan our measures, and the majority will carry them. Their popularity is equally at stake with ours: we can yet all swim together.

The cabinet seems to break up with facet long as their bodies, fixt in nothing but indecision.

BALTIMORE, June 2.

SPANISH COLONIES.

Capt. Davis, of the Fame, from Laguira, reports that on the 19th April a revolution took place at Carracas. All the officers that were appointed by the Junta in Spain are sent out of the country. A brig with the captain general and several other officers, went into Norfolk a few days since. Previous to the sailing of the Fame accounts had been received from most parts of the province, which had readily followed the example set at Carracas. Business dull at Laguira. The duties had been reduced under the new government to 16 1 2 per ct. on imports, and 12 1-2 per cent. on exports, and the tariff also reduced. The Americans are treated very friendly, and much courted by the government, who are anxious to be on amicable terms with the U. States. Capt. D. has brought a number of manifestoes, proclamations, addresses, &c. of the new government. Passengers in the Fame, Mr. John Hughes, of Philadelphia, Don Juan Vizante Bolivar, Don Telefore Oreas, Don Juan Yriante, Don Juan Tinveo and servants.

COMMUNICATION.

The great and laudable care which our present worthy members of Council have, at all times, manifested for the morals and health of the inhabitants, affords a well grounded hope that they will readily adopt any measure which may have a tendency still farther to improve either, or both, of these all important matters. It is possible, however, that the writer from the narrowness of his intellectual views, may be erroneous in supposing that an evil exists, when in fact the more enlightened can make no such discovery. Cleanliness is certainly a virtue, and he flatters himself that no person in his humble sphere of life, pays more attention to it than he does: hence it may be inferred that he approves of the law of the corporation directing the cleaning of the pavement, &c.; but he disapproves of doing any part of it on a Saturday, unless the duty could be performed in sufficient time to enable the officers of Police to ascertain the fact on that evening without encroaching on the sabbath; but this cannot possibly be done, if he may judge from what he and others have lately witnessed; and it is well known that those officers, from the highest to the lowest, are inclined conscientiously to dissharge their public duty: it remains, therefore, a moot point whether they are not employed the greater part of that sacred day in noting the delinquents, & brooding over the delicious twenty one cents a piece, to be recovered in the name of costs, from those who sin through ignorance; for the knowing ones can certainly very easily evade the law:—When he says this, however, he judges of himself; some men there may be who can "in the twinkling of an eye" divest themselves of all carnal cares and become "holy and undefiled in cumulo. To the religious character it is not requisite to state, that infinitely more is to be expected from a strict observance of the ordinances of the Omnipotent, than the most scrupulous attention to human law without it: And to assert that any member of Council, or its officers, are destitute of religion, would be committing an offence of no mean grade against the good sense of the sovereign people of this corporation.

On the morning of that idle day, too, it is well known that many of our tender beaus collect in groupes and stand for hours at the corners of our public streets, which are impregnated with the ablution of the previous night, aided by the heavy dews of the morning. This may imperceptibly undermine their constitutions and deprive the community prematurely of many promising members, whose precious observations "on men and manners," thus acquired, are in danger of dying with them.

Out of regard, therefore, for both the souls and bodies of men, would it not be well to set apart for this necessary work some other day than Saturday, and would it not be equally salutary and beneficial if performed on FRIDAY?

It was currently reported in Europe immediately on his marriage, that Bonaparte would make a proposition of peace to his brother George of England; but it was the expectation that it would be rejected.

Our accounts direct from Spain are—as they generally are—later than those in English papers. But we find in the last one of the boldest edicts ever promulgated by the patriotic councils of Spain and issued on the 18th March, after the French were before Cadiz;—No less than the formal recognition of the court of Province, [Louis XVII.] as the legitimate sovereign of France; and a denunciation of Napoleon Bonaparte as an usurper, and his brother Joseph, as his tool; and offering as a reward, one of the first commandaries of the military orders, Santiago and Alcantara, with the right of property to his heirs in perpetuity; to any Spaniard, or foreigner, who, in the service of Spain, her liberty and monarch, shall deliver up alive or dead Napoleon Bonaparte, or the pretender Joseph, his brother, as also an honorable style, which shall denote in future the nobility of his family.

NOTICE.

THE Creditors of the house of Clingman and M'Gaw, formerly of Alexandria, merchants, are requested to transmit their respective claims duly authenticated to Geo. W. Strong, esq. counsellor at law, No 115, Burling Slip New York. The object of this request is to ascertain the entire amount of all claims on the said house, in the city of Alexandria and its vicinity, as preparatory to making some proposition for their final adjustment. As it will be impracticable to submit to the creditors any specific proposition, until the whole amount of the debts is known, it is of consequence that they should all attend to this notice; and it is hoped they will not suffer the period for transmitting their accounts to be protracted beyond the 20th day of June next.

FOR SALE, BY

R. GRAY, King-street,

AND

NICHOLAS HINGSTON,

Fairfax street—

Patent and Family Medicines,

PREPARED BY

MICHAEL LEE & CO.

BALTIMORE.

For the preservation of health and cure of diseases, the following celebrated Medicines are confidently recommended, viz.

Lee's Anti-Bilious Pills,

For the prevention and cure of Bilious and Malignant Fevers.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild—so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation, and of every age.

The are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile, and to prevent its morbid secretions; to restore and amend the appetite, produce a free perspiration, and thereby prevent colds, which are often of fatal consequences! a dose never fails to remove a cold, if taken on its first appearance. They are celebrated for removing habitual constiveness; sickness at the stomach and severe head aches; and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

LEE'S Worm-Destroying Lozenges,

This medicine which is as innocent and mild as it is certain and efficacious in its operation, cannot injure the smallest infant, should no worms exist in the body—but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders.

Lee's Elixir.

A sovereign remedy for colds, obstinate coughs, Catarrahs, asthmas, sore throats and approaching consumptions.

To parents who may have children afflicted with the Whooping Cough, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time removes the most cruel disorder to which children are liable. The Elixir is not perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small, that no difficulty arises in taking of it.

Lee's Grand Restorative.

Proved by long and extensive experience to be absolutely unparalleled in the cure of Nervous disorders, consumptions, lowness of spirits, loss of appetite, impurity of blood, hysterical affections, inward weaknesses, violent cramps in the stomach and back, indigestion, melancholy, gout in the stomach, involuntary emissions, pains in the limbs, relaxations, obstinate gleets, flur albus (or whites) impotency, barrenness, &c. &c.

Infallible Ague & Fever Drops.

For the cure of Agues, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers.

Lee's Genuine Essence & Extract of Mustard.

A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic Rheumatism, gout, palsy, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains bruises, pains in the face and neck, &c.

Lee's Sovereign Ointment for the ITCH.

A preparation which for pleasantness, ease, safety and expedition, gives place to no application whatever, free from mercury, or any pernicious ingredient, and unattended with that troublesome and tormenting smart which generally accompanies other medicines, prepared for the same purpose. This vegetable remedy is so mild, yet efficacious, that it may be used with the utmost safety on the most delicate pregnant lady, or on a child not a week old.

Lee's genuine Eye Water,

A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of natural weakness or of accident.

Lee's genuine Persian Lotion,

So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe as an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals, (the basis of other lotions) and of unparalelled efficacy in preventing and removing blemishes in the face and skin, of every kind, particularly freckles, pimples, pits after small pox, inflammatory redness, scurfs, tetters, ring worms, sun burns, prickly heat, premature wrinkles, &c. The Persian Lotion operates mildly without impeding that natural perspiration which is essential to health—yet its effects are speedy and permanent, rendering the skin delicately soft and clear, improving the complexion and restoring the bloom of youth.

Damask Lip Salve.

Tooth-Ache Drops.

The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Anodyne Elixir,

for the cure of every kind of Head-Ache.

Restorative Tooth Powder,

for the Teeth and Gums.

The Indian Vegetable Specific,

for the cure of venereal complaints.

The proprietors think it necessary to remind the public that these medicines have been for several years prepared by the late Richard Lee and Son, to whom they are the immediate successors; the good effects of which are authenticated by some of our most respectable citizens. Without attending to our signature the purchaser may be disappointed by receiving no benefit, not having our genuine medicines.

To detect counterfeits, observe each article has on the outside wrapper, the signature of late Richard Lee and Son.

Michael Lee & Co.

THE DISAPPOINTMENTS OF YOUTH,

A NOVEL.

BY GEORGE WATTERSTON, Esq.
OF WASHINGTON CITY,
Author of the Lawyer and Child of Feeling.

The celebrity of this author's "LAWYER," and "CHILD OF FEELING" induced the publishers to engage in this work, and without detracting from the merits of the former, feel themselves justified in stating that his GLENCARN is superior to either. It is submitted without further recommendation, with a wish, that the American reviewers may give further encouragement to this young gentleman's endeavors to entertain, instruct and moralize his fellow citizens, in a way seemingly well calculated to attract their attention.
